

LibraryCrunch

Bringing You A "Library 2.0" Perspective, by Michael Casey

« Pew Memo: Search Engine Use | Main | "It's about adding additional functionality" »

Sidney Verba and getting teens to the library

From the New York Times comes a wonderful look at Sidney Verba, director of Harvard's library, and his partnership with Google.

"Everyone with a teenage kid is worried that the younger generation may believe that all knowledge is on Google," said Mr. Verba, who said he nagged his own students to use library books.

"But what this does," he said, referring to the Google project, "is take you to Google, which takes you to the library."

Posted by Michael on November 21, 2005 09:04 PM | Permalink

→ TrackBack

TrackBack URL for this entry:
<http://www.librarycrunch.com/mt/mt-tb.cgi/61>

→ Post a comment

(If you haven't left a comment here before, you may need to be approved by the site owner before your comment will appear. Until then, it won't appear on the entry. Thanks for waiting.)

Name:

Email Address:

URL:

☐ Remember personal info?

Comments:

Preview

Post