

LibraryCrunch

Bringing You A "Library 2.0" Perspective, by Michael Casey

« Going to Seattle | Main | Decentralization and the Integrator »

Within the inner sanctum

For the past two days Microsoft has been wining and dining a group of tech writers and bloggers and a few luck library-types like myself, and they've been doing it in a fashion only MS can do -- top quality lodging, food, etc... We've been shown many new applications they're planning on rolling out, only a few of which I can discuss since we're under a strict non-disclosure agreement. Michael at TechCrunch has a very good overview of what we can discuss, so I'll point you there for more technical info. MS has also been listening to our ideas and suggestions and asking us some very good questions regarding their new and existing products. All-in-all, it's been a very informative and productive experience.

I'll post more upon my return this weekend.

Posted by Michael on January 26, 2006 10:37 AM | Permalink

→ TrackBack

TrackBack URL for this entry:
<http://www.librarycrunch.com/mt/mt-tb.cgi/106>

→ Post a comment

Name:

Email Address:

URL:

☐ Remember personal info?

Comments:

Preview

Post