

LibraryCrunch

Service for the Next Generation Library: A Library 2.0 Perspective by Michael Casey

« How Dangerous Is the Internet for Children? | Main | Library Riot »

Why Did You De-Friend Me?

No, I did not remove you as a friend on Facebook. I did, however, deactivate my Facebook account. I didn't do it as any form of political protest over Facebook's deletion of breastfeeding photos or because of their Patriot Act-like privacy policy or anything like that. I did it because I grew tired of Facebook itself. The service I always used the most was their status indicator, but since starting to use Twitter last year I have found that my need for Facebook fell to just about zero. I grew tired of all the little Facebook apps and invitations to use those apps.

My social networking is done via Flickr, this blog, IM and Twitter -- if you want to know what I'm doing then follow me on those services or chat me up in IM or email.

Posted by Michael on March 8, 2008 03:03 PM | Permalink

→ Post a comment

(If you haven't left a comment here before, you may need to be approved by the site owner before your comment will appear. Until then, it won't appear on the entry. Thanks for waiting.)

Name:

Email Address:

URL:

☐ Remember personal info?

Comments:

Preview

Post